

EFFORTS TO QUASH BOOZE CASES FAIL

Grimm Over-Rules Motion in Monroe Court—Janesville Attorneys Appear.

[SPECIAL TO THIS GAZETTE] Monroe.—The fight of attorneys of John Ammon, Jacob Baisinger, and C. F. Zentner to quash their cases charging violation of the liquor laws, failed Tuesday in Green county circuit court, when Judge George Grimm overruled their motion. Judge Grimm held that the officers had acted within their duty in making the arrests and seizures and that the constitutional rights of none of the defendants were invaded. The judge ruled in favor of the defendants, it would have stricken eight criminal cases from the calendar.

Trial of Frank Sackler and H. T. Chandler, charged with breaking into the county courthouse in the night time and stealing some alleged moonshine held as evidence opened Tuesday afternoon with M. O. Mount, of Janesville, defending Chandler.

Considerable eloquence was poured out by the attorneys for Oswald Zentner, on whose farm it is alleged officers found a still for manufacturing whiskey and 14 barrels of moonshine. They are trying to prove that the barn in which the evidence is alleged to have been found should be called "home" or "castle" and that the officers for the state claim that it should be termed correctly, a moonshine factory. Ex-Senator Henry Lockney, Waushara, is one of the attorneys for Zentner.

Judge Grimm remarked at the eloquence that it was like a Fourth of July oration. He referred to Lockney's speech. Charles Pierce of Janesville is assisting District Attorney H. N. B. Caradine. Three members of the state prohibition staff are on hand for the trials.

Why Should You Follow A Crooked Path?

Often a cowpath has been allowed to become a village street, and as the village expanded, tradition has made the winding way an expression of a cow's will.

Habit is always forging chains to enslave us, so that what has been found bearable by the fathers is accepted by the sons.

Who cannot recall the coffee-pot Mother put on the stove early in the morning, warning us not to let it boil over?

As children, we were not permitted to drink tea or coffee, because it would stunt our growth or make us nervous and irritable. When older, however, we craved a hot drink with meals, and custom gave us our tea or coffee.

Finally, upon the instructions of the doctor, Mother gave up her tea and coffee. But that meant nothing in our young lives. Our vitality was then strong enough to throw off any ill effects.

But our time came, and we learned by experience that we could not drink tea or coffee. When we had it for breakfast it put our nerves on edge. When we drank it at the evening meal, we tossed about in wakefulness most of the night.

And then we found Postum, a pure cereal beverage, free from the harmful drug, caffeine, in tea and coffee. We liked the rich, satisfying flavor of Postum—and also the better health which resulted. And, too, we were surprised to find how many of our neighbors had made the same discovery—had learned the value of "health first."

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes. Sold by all grocers.

Postum for Health—"There's a Reason"

BIG EXPOSITION BOOMS BUSINESS

Many Orders Are Taken—Y. W. C. A. to Present Plays Thursday Night.

THURSDAY'S PROGRAM
8:30 P. M.—Two plays by Y. W. C. A. girls.
Orchestra—dancing.
Novels—music.
No Exhibits.

Thousands of dollars' worth of orders are being taken at the Southern Wisconsin Industrial and Commercial exposition now being held at the Sunken building on East Milwaukee street, J. W. Paake, manager of the business show, said Thursday. One automobile dealer sold a $1,000 car Wednesday while other motor car dealers are reporting sales of their regular models. A novelty concern states that it has taken orders for $6,000 worth of its product. Sales have been made by every concern having booths, it is stated.

Wednesday the day for paid admissions so far during the exposition. A total of 1,775 entrance tickets were sold. Figuring the number of passes at 250, the total attendance up to 10:25 Wednesday night was out at 8,125. The attendance is increasing daily.

From a record kept by one of the exhibitors, people from 35 cities in the vicinity of Janesville have attended the exposition. Many farmers were present Wednesday morning. Although they had only several hours' notice, the ministerial troupe of the Y. M. C. A. made a hit in a show staged at the exposition Wednesday night. The minstrels were led by General Secretary J. A. Stalder. Physical Director A. E. Bergmann was intercomedian. The 300-voice Salvation Army band was also well received. Both organizations appeared in two shows.

Thursday night, the girls of the Y. W. C. A. will present two plays. Y. W. C. A. will present two plays. Y. W. C. A. will present two plays.

It was announced Thursday by the Heibel Bottling company, whose exhibit has just got under way, that 5,500 free drinks of a new beverage have been given.

Continuing the practice until the close of the exposition at midnight next Monday.

Lucian O. Holman, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, under whose auspices the exposition is being held, declared Thursday:

"The exposition is a great success in every way. Those who are not attending are missing the event of the year."

Mooseheart Is Doing Big Work for Children

Making his third speech in Janesville, Darius A. Brown, supreme dictator of the Loyal Order of Moose, and former mayor of Kansas City, addressed a large number of Moose and others at the Y. M. C. A. Wednesday night on what the Mooseheart school is doing for girls and boys without the pleasure of a home, with a father and mother.

"During my years of public life," he said, "I have been impressed with the fact that ignorance and poverty were two great menacing evils of American social life and if all the children of American society could be made free from the dangers of these two insidious evils, most of the criminality would disappear."

"I have recognized the fact that one of the great contributing reasons for crime and its attendant misery was due to the fact that the wage

CHAPTER I.
LONELY HAPPINESS.

A doctor's smile can sometimes do more good than all the medicine he could administer. And at this particular time I was in need of that encouraging expression on his face that I was of drugs and nursing.

"A little over-wrought and tired," was his verdict. "A week or so in bed, and you'll be all right." He looked at me with a kindly expression on his face that I was of drugs and nursing.

I looked up in surprise at the name. He corrected himself. "I mean Mrs. Taylor. You see it was Mrs. Bennett when you stayed here last. I forgot the romance and the elopement went on of our days. By the way, how is Mr. Taylor?"

Of course he could not know! I struggled for my composure, and managed to say, "Very well, thanks, and could only get a part of it through the great lump that filled my throat."

And then I broke down and went hysterically. I had been choking at back for days, for weeks and months. I felt as if I were under some of the nervousness that had been half-killing me all the time.

Even then, the poor old doctor guessed only half. He gave me something soothing to take to my room in charge of a trim gray-haired attendant, who only made me long for the sweet Irish woman who attended me before.

I had not told him my mother I was coming. Mrs. Taylor of course blamed me for all that had happened. That was only natural, and I could not resent it. She thought I had let her in for debt and extravagance. How could she think otherwise? Win had no occasion to live at home as he did in the city.

I thought a great deal about her while I lay in bed in the sanitarium. They had given me my old room, and not a thing was changed—not even the creaking, whose pattern was so familiar to me.

As I slowly began to grow quiet and rested, and to feel that in spite of everything, life might be bearable, I thought a great deal about my friends in the city. I was so ill before I left that it never occurred to me that I had run away from them, leaving no address, and no word, not even for my aunt and cousin.

I think I slept almost all the time for the first week or so. When I was awake, I lay there looking lazily at the room, and rather vaguely I felt I was back again in my old home. I felt I had escaped a very hectic, unpleasant sort of life, and was to rest and be quiet and happy now. I felt things were beginning again. I was going to try and rent the same little white house I formerly had. Then my head would become clearer and I would remember all that was past—that I had definitely broken with Win, that I had loved, and been loved, and it was all over now.

But still the feeling persisted vaguely, due to the old surroundings, that all the past experience was to be relieved, that the same thing was to begin again. So I was not surprised one afternoon when my door opened, and Winthrop's mother walked into the room, her arms full of flowers—just as she used to come to me.

Without a word I held out my hands and she laid her flowers on the table and came over and kissed me. And I cried and she did too, and in that very feminine fashion we took up our friendship where it was broken off when I had left Wellsville before.

"I only know you were here this morning," she said when we had settled down to talk. "I've been so busy. This is my first visit to the sanitarium since the spring. The doctors wondered why I didn't come, and I had to tell them I didn't know you were here. Quicker, they must have thought it."

I tried to explain, but for once she understood without my telling her.

"I know. Don't try to talk too much. They said you were too sick to have written, probably. Then this morning I got a letter from Win. First in it, don't know how many months. He said you'd left him, said you'd agreed to live apart. But we won't talk about it now."

"He said he'd heard you'd left town, and supposed it was with your aunt. That would have been all right, only in the same mail comes a letter from your aunt."

"Poor Aunt Harriet! I never told her I was leaving town." "Poor Aunt Harriet! I should say, she's been half crazy worrying!" said there was no address at your place, she'd asked all your friends and that even—some man I forget."

"That's it. That he didn't know and was worried. I wrote them where he was and safe. Doctor says you can come to my place now. That will look better."

BLACKHEAD CLEANSING POWDER

If the skin is not well cleaned off, if the system is not in good working order so that the body does not eliminate properly, blackheads are sure to result. The blackhead is usually produced by the impurities in the skin, but waste matter from the system, not being eliminated in the ordinary way, finds its exit through a pore in the skin.

Ordinarily, the skin is so covered with invisible except under a powerful magnifying glass. But after the eruption has appeared on the skin, the pores are enlarged, and the blackhead is frequently filled with an oily and waxy substance. Where this comes to the surface of the skin it absorbs the dust and dirt from the atmosphere and acquires a blackhead. Hence its name.

Ordinary methods of washing the face will not eliminate blackheads. You must get down into the pores and get out the substance that clogs and enlarges it. The most effective means I know is to use the following:

BLACKHEAD CLEANSING POWDER
Wheat or corn starch—2 ounces.
Powdered borax—1 ounce.
Almond meal—1 ounce.

This is mixed and used instead of soap. Laid hot, wet cloths over the face, then apply a little powder on the fingers and rub thoroughly into the wet skin; repeat until you have used quite a bit of the powder, which the skin readily absorbs. Wash out with hot water and massage in a little cold cream.

Miss Pattence—Massage the bust gently each night, using warm cocoa butter, and cold water on the arms in the morning, and follow by friction from a coarse towel. Practice deep breathing also as this strengthens the muscles of the chest, including those of the bust.

Steady Reader—You are 30 pounds overweight. If you reduce to that extent, your hips will not be too large. S. T. Beach the freckles with lemon juice or the juice from cucumbers.

Skinnies—A girl of 15, five feet three inches tall, should weigh about 110 pounds. The boy should weigh about 150 pounds less.

Remedies—The corset goes on first and then the brassiere, which fastens down over the corset with a strap. The camisole is worn over the corset and brassiere. The girl of 15 is not too old to wear her hair bobbed.

M. M. M.—The electric needle is the only thing to destroy this superfluous hair permanently, but you can keep it down by pulling out all the coarse hairs with tweezers and bleaching the finer ones.

Mrs. D.—Send a stamped addressed envelope for the formula of the hair tonic; there is not space at this time to print it.

Heart and Home Problems

Letters May be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette.

Psychologists say that it is a bad plan to say "don't" unless you follow it up with a "do." The person criticized is not really corrected unless he or she is taught the right way.

It has occurred to me that we of the THOMPSON COLUMN might be of great help to each other by forming a "DON'T AND DO CLUB," in which we write little articles concerning faults, which we have observed in people and a means of correcting them. Such articles will have to be brief, between 50 and 100 words long, or there will be no room for them in the column.

I am going to start off the plan with the following: "Don't use the word SWELL. It is an adjective which is incorrectly used to describe concerts, sunsets, dinners, things you can think of. If you want to be refined drop the word SWELL from your vocabulary."

Instead, speak of a "wonderful concert," "excellent dinner," "beautiful girls," "delicious dinner," "excellent movies," "cunning babies," "appropriate dress." It is far better to use WORDS so often than to use SWELL at all.

I shall be glad to hear from any of my readers who want to help and be helped.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Just because I am a girl is that any reason why I cannot or should not learn to play football? Would it be unladylike to do so? I am an athletic girl of 15 and prefer outdoor sports to indoor stunts like the piano, sewing, inside games, etc.

I get my lessons exceptionally well and like to read very much, but I don't like the teachers because they like me too much. I want to do something beside exercise my brain and so I like outdoor sports.

Do you think a mother ought to scold if her 15-year-old daughter stays up until 3:30 to read Shakespeare's plays? On the other hand, don't you think that 9 or 9:30 is enough?

MISS ALETA.

Football is a very rough game and is not therefore suited to girls. Some girls are physically strong enough for it, but no girl should play the game without a medical examination first. I do not think it would be unladylike for a girl to play the game with other girls, but it is too rough to play with boys. I would advise you to take a course of gymnasium work where you can use up some of your excess energy.

I am afraid you overestimate the quality of your school work. Your letter was poorly written for a girl of your age. Several words were misspelled; for instance, you said "athletic" and "exceptionally." Besides, you wrote on a dirty and torn piece of paper and used a lead pencil. Clean paper and pen and ink should be used in correspondence.

At your age you should retire early. It is quite right that your parents set the hour because they can judge what is good for you by the hour you rise in the morning, your activities during the day and your endurance.

"Engaged": In the letter you sent me you certainly leave a lot to the imagination. If you have positive proof that your fiancé has been doing things that he should not do and that you feel that you could not marry him,

The Album Speaks

The old plush covered family album, which had been purposely placed in the living room for the night, seemed to be astir. Almeda Ellison, who had just hidden goodnight to her hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Harber, and their son Robert, was at once attracted to the album which was lying under a reading lamp, beside her bed. She was drawn to it, and tremulously she took up the album and unclasped it. Ever after she felt in her heart that the album had actually spoken to her, saying:

"Here are Robert's four great-grandfathers and four great-grandmothers. After the eight nobles faces we find the next four places reserved for four children of the four couples who, in turn, mated—and all, as far as we can see, for the purpose of producing Robert for you!"

"The photographs are from oil portraits and miniatures painted in various places in England and the American colonies. This forefather sat cozily in Boston, and this one in New York. Their two men's likenesses were painted in Virginia, probably on medallions to be worn at the young throats of the brides. Probably these bridegrooms were friends in Virginia—the pictures were painted in Richmond the same year—and probably they were on a horseback or stage-coach journey in the North when they met their crinolined destinies.

"This throwing together of families unrelated by blood ties had its result, junction by marriage. The great trek westward had begun, and one couple made the long emigration to the Missouri river, settling at Westport Landing, eastern terminus of the and we find the proud young father in Union uniform standing beside his son, this picture being enlarged from a daguerreotype.

"The other grandfather and grandmother were slower coming west. Not until after the civil war do we find tiny types of them taken in St. Louis and New Orleans. This father fought with the South, as his picture in uniform shows. It was in the seventies that the girl baby arrived."

"Now we come to more understandable days. There is a wedding photograph in all its horror of forty, and young father of Robert seated and in lovely bride standing and clamping her little hand on his shoulder. Let a mutton sleeve follow, and enormous military, also baby Robert, age the development of the photograph so that it became more than a register of births and marriages."

"Ah, now I can bring the color to your cheeks, with picture after picture of Robert in many phases of childhood and boyhood, ending with him in his captain's uniform in the Great War. And finally, blank pages, ready for the next chapter."

"What is the significance of all this, young woman? This chivalric stalwartness in past evolutionary days, the fighting for independence, the hardship and vision that created the Great West, the equanimity that developed our country and saved it in the Civil War and the World War, bringing us down to the unsettled present when cool heads and brave hearts are as much needed as ever—and to this young man and you. Are you going to carry on the tradition?"

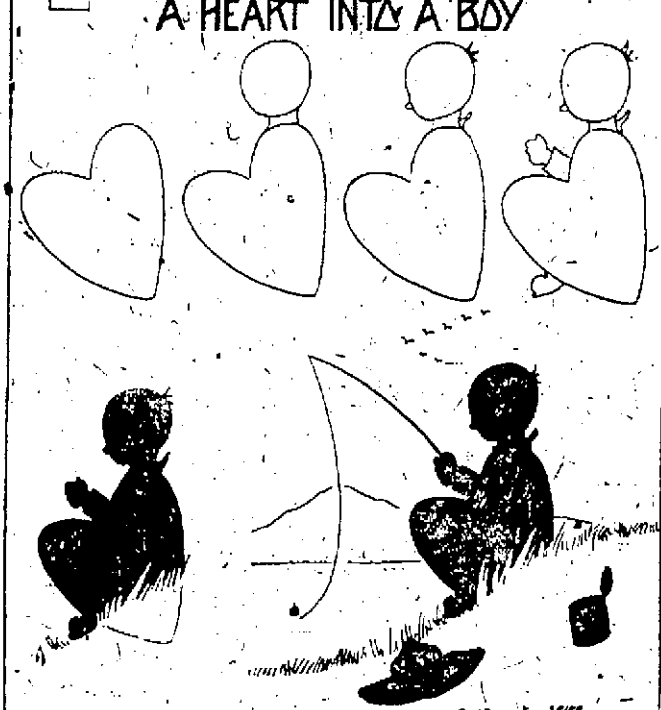

The girl bent over the album, embracing it.

Tremulously she took up the album and unclasped it.

NOVEMBER 6.18	ELECTRIC LIGHT	SLEEP
DECEMBER 6.85	ELECTRIC LIGHT	SLEEP

THIS CHART shows you at a glance why your electric light bills are apt to be considerably higher in January than July. The illustration has been prepared by the Society for Electrical Development and gives the number of artificial lighting hours, per day, for each month in the year. You will notice that the average use of electric light in a residence in December, is the heaviest of the year. In December the average use is nearly 7 hours a day, whereas in June, the average is only 2 hours and 33 minutes.

In January, the daylight hours grow and the artificial lighting hours decrease. And this condition continues from month to month until we again reach the balmy days of June.

Do away with back breaking rubbing—even in hard water

FOR ordinarily soft water a half package of Rinso to a tub makes a rich lather. For harder water increase the amount until you get a rich, lasting suds, even after the clothes have been put in.

Where water is extremely hard it may be necessary to dissolve a full package or more to a tub.

Dissolve the amount of Rinso you have found right for the water you use in two quarts of boiling water. Pour this solution into your tub of lukewarm water—stir well.

Put in your clothes and let them soak, one hour, two hours, overnight—whatever time is convenient. Rinse, to remove the loosened dirt, till the water runs clear.

No other soap product or softener is needed with Rinso, even in the hardest water. In hard water just use more Rinso.

Your clothes soak as safely in Rinso as in water alone

CHINA OPEN DOOR PROBLEM WILL BE CONFERENCE ISSUE

trust or of suspicion. The Japanese protest that they never break their word that they have only disinterested motives and seek merely a place for commercial expansion for their already overpopulated country. But the Chinese will not listen. Sharing the Chinese suspicions are practically all the British, French and American business interests in China. They are violently anti-Japanese. They expect their respective governments to use their moral and physical power to keep the Japanese from overstepping the bounds of commercial necessity. They insist that the open door means an open door and no discrimination.

Who will keep the "open door" open? Who will enforce the understanding? The British government knows it cannot do it alone. Sharing the United States help? That's why the British are not anxious to announce at this time what they will do with the Anglo-Japanese alliance. The alliance has been regarded because of the stimulus it gives the Japanese politically and commercially, but another school of thought in the British government is anxious to know first whether the moral and physical help of the United States can be counted upon if the alliance is given up. In other words, it is contended by the latter group of statesmen that the Anglo-Japanese alliance gives the British government a certain intimacy with the Japanese government which makes it possible to hold Japan back recently but firmly and exercise quietly an influence which might never be publicly acknowledged or heeded if the alliance were broken and if Japan felt she must eventually seek the hand of reconstructed Germany or reconstituted Russia to assist in fulfilling her ambitions in the Far East.

Avail C. S. Attitude

Does America stand ready to enter into a treaty which will impose certain mutual obligations? Great Britain is waiting to see. The United States position is not clear. Under Mr. Kinkaid's administration and has reiterated her eagerness many times since Mr. Roosevelt and republican secretaries of state to maintain the territorial integrity and administrative independence of China. Will the Harding Administration say so in a formal treaty? Mindful of the fact that the republican party denounced article ten in the Wilson covenant because it was intended to guarantee the territorial integrity and political independence of member states in the league of nations. Including China, this query is whether enough water has gone over the dam to make President Harding and Secretary Hughes ready to apply the doctrine of article ten to China.

Back of it all is a desire to prevent the Japanese from breaking their word that they have only disinterested motives and seek merely a place for commercial expansion for their already overpopulated country. But the Chinese will not listen. Sharing the Chinese suspicions are practically all the British, French and American business interests in China. They are violently anti-Japanese. They expect their respective governments to use their moral and physical power to keep the Japanese from overstepping the bounds of commercial necessity. They insist that the open door means an open door and no discrimination.

Open Door Sought

The drawing up of a treaty or convention which would insure the territorial integrity and political independence of member states in the league of nations. Including China, this query is whether enough water has gone over the dam to make President Harding and Secretary Hughes ready to apply the doctrine of article ten to China.

To all this the anti-Japanese elements in our own country as well as in the European powers still look with suspicion. What good, say they, is any treaty with Japan. She has adopted, they claim, the German political system. What the foreign office may say is no doubt sincere but the important thing, feeling that Japan is ruled by a military clique, that the Japanese general staff does what it pleases with the just as the German general staff used to do, rough shod, over the foreign office and as the German admiralty made a series of paper out of the pledges of the German foreign secretary, there is little faith on the part of some of our army and navy folk in the value of any treaty or compact.

Hard Problem on Hands

Suspicion and mistrust is a hard thing to combat. It runs all through the Japanese-Chinese controversy as well as their own relations with the Far East. But the United States government cannot officially take compliance of that mistrust. It is true our army and navy officers who have been in the East constantly talk about it. The truth is, however, that the Japanese militarism has come to Washington to convince the most skeptical that there must be something back of it all and that it behooves America to be prudent. The Japanese Foreign Office, whose good faith is not being questioned, thus has a problem on its hands which everyone here is anxious to make easier. When the Japanese government employs American advisers and American newspaper men as publicity agents, there is no frowning on the part of our officials. No, the hope is that every opportunity will be given the Japanese government and people to see that America is not anxious for war, not anxious for the building up of incessant mistrust and controversy but wants a clean-up of tangles and disputes which have led to the rapid rise of a mischievous Jing spirit in both Japan and the United States.

Has Financial Aspect

It is not entirely a political problem. For America it has an important financial aspect. Not more than a year ago, Thomas W. Lamont of J. P. Morgan & Company went to China and Japan and with the moral support of our Department of State negotiated an agreement known as a "consortium" whereby the capitalists of Great Britain, France, Japan and the United States agreed to a general set of principles for the financing of enterprises in China. It was another step in the open door policy of the United States. Everybody knew that the United States did not have much capital available and that even though our powers were included in the agreement to make it more impressive, the bankers of Japan and the United States alone were concerned. But capital has not been forthcoming so easily. Why should money flow to a region of the world where political conditions are unsettled?

Why should money flow to a region of the world where political conditions are unsettled? Why should money flow to a region of the world where political conditions are unsettled? Why should money flow to a region of the world where political conditions are unsettled?

U. S. PHONE HEARING AT MADISON, MONDAY

Merger of the two telephone companies in Janesville to the Wisconsin Telephone company is expected to be decided on Monday. The hearing by the United States Interstate Commerce commission, following a hearing in Madison next Monday. Consent of the government is the first necessary before the companies can proceed with the consolidation and testimony must be introduced showing that the merger is desired and for the public good. Recently the Department of Justice made complaint against the Wisconsin Telephone company alleging violation of the Sherman anti-trust laws. Consequently the government has taken action to prevent the main telephone corporation from absorbing rival companies—unless it is to the benefit of the patrons.

Attorney Roger G. Cunningham will appear for the city. M. F. Richardson, the Rock county company, which is to be joined with the Bell line is federal permission is granted and W. N. Cash, Janesville member of the Wisconsin company and their attorney William Kilezek.

FORM TWO TESTING UNITS IN CLINTON

Rock Prairie Cow Testing Association Is Divided

The Rock Prairie Cow Testing association met Tuesday evening in the Y. M. C. A. at Clinton with F. C. Kiefer, secretary, as chairman. W. J. Duggan, Beloit's Guernsey dairyman, gave an excellent talk on the value of a cow testing association.

Mr. Duggan testified that the cow testing association had made it possible for him to select his best cows from year to year and keep the offspring. By following his records closely he has been able to build up one of the best grade herds in southern Wisconsin.

Mr. Duggan stated that there was only one way to sell milking cows and that is by the open book. The open book is the record of the animal. He has been able to sell cows all the way from $50 to $100 above the market price by having good individuals and selling them on their records. By knowing the cost of production, and what each cow was doing he had a firm grasp on the business of dairying.

Talk By A. J. Ganser

A. J. Ganser, secretary of the Wisconsin Dairymen's association, gave a talk on the advantages of a cow testing association. He stated that only one cow testing association in the state had been able to sell $10,000 worth of cattle to an outside buyer because they had records of the cows.

T. T. Glasco, county agent, gave a short talk on the cow testing situation in Rock county. He proposed that the Rock Prairie Cow Testing association be divided into two sections with the nucleus of one around Clinton and the other around

ERECT NEW SIGNAL TO AVOID WRECKS

Northwestern Guards Against Repetition of Crashes at Five Points.

Installation of a semi-automatic block signal in the Atton cut of the Chicago & Northwestern railway, several hundred feet from where it joins the main line tracks at the Five Points, was completed Friday. The signal will respond electrically when the switch is thrown. It will be operated by hand by the switchman on duty at the Five Points Junction. Hundreds of people on foot and in vehicles pass within sight of the new signal daily, but only a few have noticed it. Those who have, in all probability, considered it just another improvement by the railroad company for the safety of trains and passengers.

Yet behind the erection of the post, which can be seen from either direction and on the main line, as well as in the cut, lies the story of agitation of several years for such a device.

Two wrecks have occurred at this junction. The first one came a number of years ago when an empty passenger train side-swiped a circus train, straining the track with debris and delaying traffic for several hours. Though no one was injured at that time, the dangers of the arrangement of tracks whereby it is impossible to see a train coming north on the cut by an engineer on a train solar north on the main line, were pointed out at that time and request for better signal protection was made. Nothing was done until April 7, 1921, when a passenger train rushing toward the town depot, seven minutes late, crashed side-on into the evening Harward "scout" where the tracks join into one.

The force of the impact, heard for blocks, hurled one wooden passenger coach completely on its side, threw another off its trucks, and partly derailed a milk car. Eight persons were injured, one a man 82 years of age. Traffic was blocked five and a half hours, while trains from the south were routed around by the old way at Atton and then through Evansville.

COBBLER FINDS COW AT SHOP, RESULT OF HALLOWEEN PRANK

Albany—The pranks of boys of this place in their celebration of Halloween was rather hard, especially on the store of the cobbler, Thomas Dolan. Bornstein came to work Tuesday morning to find the cow tied to the door knob of his place of business surrounded by a wall of fence posts, lumber wagons, signs, and junk. Some customers of Dolan's from whom they get milk, did not get it at the usual hour Tuesday morning.
